1985 STATE SUMMARY

Wisconsin has 370 independent public libraries organized around 17 public library systems. These libraries offer a wide range of services. Just how different Wisconsin public libraries are from each other is most easily seen by examining selected categories of library characteristics. For comparison purposes, home community population can be used for classification groupings.

Since all public libraries in Wisconsin open their doors to at least all residents of the counties within the system area, home community population does not necessarily represent the actual population being served. However, several useful observations can be made by classifying libraries by home community population. Charts 1 and 2 present library characteristic totals and the corresponding percent of total by population group. For instance, 174 public libraries (47.28% of all public libraries) are located in communities of under 2,000 population. These libraries hold 1,261,691 volumes, 9.57% of all volumes held in Wisconsin public libraries.

About 1.1 million residents, one-quarter of Wisconsin's population, do not have a public library in their home community. Of established public libraries, more than 66% are located in communities of under 4,000 population and 75% are in communities of under 8,000 population. The 285 libraries in communities under 8,000 have a total home community population total of about 600,000. The largest 31 public libraries (8.35% of all public libraries) have a home community population total of over 2.3 million.

Considering the underlying community base, it is not surprising that over two-thirds of the funds raised and spent in public libraries support the largest 31 libraries. Meanwhile small community libraries representing 75% of all libraries receive and expend about 15% of all funds. Staffing patterns reflect the expenditure distribution. In terms of full time equivalent positions, the 285 small community public libraries employ less than 18% of all staff employed by public libraries. In addition, these same libraries employ only 6.5% of all professional public librarians. The largest 31 libraries employ nearly 65% of all public library staff and have with them nearly 75% of all professional public librarians.

The number of total volumes held by small libraries seems high when considered with overall funding. Over 25% percent of all public library holdings are retained in these libraries. The largest 31 libraries hold about one-half the total volumes held. Considering the limited number of hours open, circulation totals indicate active small libraries with these libraries accounting for over 20% of all circulation. Middle range public libraries appear to have holdings, circulation and staffing proportionate to their fiscal support.

As in the recent past, funding and expenditures for public library services grew by approximately 7% from 1984 to 1985. There was a 4% increase in the number of full time equivalent professional librarians employed. Overall spending for library personnel increased by 6.5%. The number of video cassette titles held nearly double from 1984 to 1985, while periodical titles subscribed to remained about the same. Library holdings of records and tapes dropped slightly. The percent increase in titles added, 13%, was greater than the increase in volumes added, 9%. The total book collection size remained at the level of the last two years, approximately 13.5 million volumes. Total library material expenditures increased by 8%. Library contract expenditures for services and all other library expenditures increased by 9% from 1984 to 1985.

The source of public library funding remains primarily at the local level with 81% of all funds coming from municipalities and counties. State aid to public library systems represents 9% of all library income while income from federal sources (mainly Library Services and Construction Act, Title I) constituted 1.5% of revenues. The remaining 8.5% of income is from gifts, trusts and service contracts. Expenditures followed the pattern of recent years with personnel costs accounting for 69% of all funds expended. Fourteen percent of available funds were used to purchase library materials.

PERCENTILE MEASURES FOR PUBLIC LIBRARIES

In 1986 the Wisconsin Public Library Standards Task Force reviewed 1985 public library data. The analysis developed for that review is presented here. This analysis takes the form of percentile charts, indicating a range of reported data for population groupings. Population groupings were created based on public library home community size. These groupings are the same as those shown in Table 1.

The data can be used for comparative planning purposes. For example, a library serving 7,000 people that makes available 5.5 volumes per capita is placed just under the 70th percentile (see Table 3); its rate of holdings per capita is greater than that of nearly 70 percent of the libraries in its population group.

This data, along with additional analyses, will be updated regularly and reproduced as a supplement to the Wisconsin Service Record.
